

Someone will inherit your savings

Make sure it's someone you've named

Naming your beneficiary—and keeping the information current—puts you in control of what happens to your retirement account if something happens to you. A birth or marriage may have changed your thinking since you made your original choice. Or maybe you never designated a beneficiary at all. Missing or outdated information can create significant delays and costs for those you leave behind.

Updating your beneficiary information is quick and easy to do

The good news is that it's easy to name, change or confirm your beneficiaries.

- Go to TIAA.org and log in to your account.
- Under the My Account tab, select Profile and choose Add/edit beneficiaries.
Note: You'll need a user ID and a valid email address to sign up.
- From there, you can designate beneficiaries and select how much each should receive.

If you have questions or need assistance, call us at 800-842-2252. For your protection, we cannot change your beneficiary over the phone.

And remember, you can change your beneficiary information again at any time.

Make sure your beneficiary information reflects your current wishes. Update it now at <https://shared.tiaa-cref.org/private/partpreferences/beneficiary>—you can always change your mind later.
